Referenced Unworldbuilt Things

- Gymbosi: Some country, referenced by Zelix. Has a King.
  - Update: Located near Tife and is on the map, but has yet to be actually world-built.
  - Often nicknamed "Gymbrosi" and stereotyped to be full of buff gym bros. This stereotype is not true, and the roughly 85% of the population which is not buff is very annoyed by this stereotype. Unfortunately the other 15% is a vocal minority which lean really heavily into the stereotype, and so the stereotype lives on.
- Siegfried: Legendary axe dating back to 3911 NA8, wielded by Keth Doomdigger (Ghul), and has since become very important to the Ghul people as a whole. It was lost to them at some point, but eventually recovered and returned to the Ghul people of the Deadlands around 4097 by Cereza.
- Balheg-Thanatia Romantasy Novel: There is a novel that was written about a young ghul prince from Thanatia and a young aristocratic female Balheg falling in love via letters. They jointly decide to bridge the distance between their countries by waging war toward each other until they meet halfway between their two countries. Through the power of love (And Balheg/Ghul combat prowess. And rather large armies), they conquer and sack a wide strip of land between them, uniting and living happily ever after, much to the detriment of the rest of the world. Copies of this book can be found in all Three Great Libraries.
